

Andy Warfel

Principal
Envirodesign

Andy Warfel is an award-winning designer of theatrical and experiential environments, ranging from intimate private one-off events, to global concert tours and promotional campaigns.

His design work has been seen off-and on-Broadway; on syndicated, network, and cable television; national and international tours; and in virtually every form of media, including on the cover of a New York Times #1 Bestseller.

As an art director at Hotopp Associates in New York City from 1994 to 1999, Andy designed numerous sets for television, theater, concerts and corporate events, while also freelancing in the theatres and nightclubs.

In the fall of 1999, Andy joined cpr-group of New York City as a freelance Creative Associate, and was soon named Partner and Chief Aesthetic Officer. Having sold his share of cpr-group and established his own design consultancy,

Andy now resides in a sleepy midwest college town with his wife and two children, from where he continues to provide creative direction and environment design for corporate initiatives, press events, promotional tours, retail, museum, television, and theatrical projects, both in the United States and abroad.
