Phil Hartley is E&ME Division's New President-Elect

Our most appreciative congratulations to Phil Hartley of Philip Hartley Associates (PHA) Ltd, who has been elected by the Europe & Middle East (E&ME) Division Board of Directors as President-Elect of the Division Board. Phil will immediately begin working as Chair of the Division's Nominating Committee. He will succeed Alan Wilkinson, Electrosonic Ltd., as President of the Division Board at the TEA Members Meeting in Orlando, November 17.

Phil has been active in TEA and on the Division board for a number of years, notably producing the Europe & Middle East Newsletter and the recent TEA Members Meeting in Nurburgring, among other contributions. Phil, along with David Willrich, DJ Willrich Ltd., is organizing the TEA E&ME Roadshow (see p. 11 for details) to help inform and connect with TEA members.

He looks forward to meeting every TEA E&ME member and welcomes their thoughts on what they really need from the Division and the Association as a whole.

Among Phil's priorities once he assumes the Division Board Presidency are:

- Growing membership – which increases member contacts and benefits
- Expanding the diversity of members, particularly bringing in operators and academics/students
- Improving the consistency and increasing the frequency of localized mixers and events
- Launching and developing an annual event, such as SATE Europe 2011

Electrosonic Provides AV and Show Control Systems for China State Shipbuilding Pavilion

Its arc structure resembling the keel of a ship, the China State Shipbuilding Pavilion at Expo 2010 Shanghai China showcases the nation's time-honored history of shipbuilding and is one of the few pavilions that will remain as a museum after the Expo concludes. Electrosonic provided the extensive audio, video and show-control systems for the pavilion that enable visitors to explore the role of shipping in China's past, investigate exciting concepts for future floating cities and farms, and simulate navigation. Electrosonic was challenged to deliver multi-image and edge-blended displays onto unusual surfaces, and furnish immersive interactive experiences for visitors.

Overall, Electrosonic furnished front, rear and fog projection screens with the majority of surfaces edge-blended and/or warped to accommodate unusual screen geometry. More than 100 projectors were installed, as well as a videowall and 23 plasma and LCD displays -- nine of them with built in touch sensitivity -- ranging from 21 to 103 inches. In addition, 72 individual audio inputs and 94 individual audio outputs feed approximately 150 speakers.

"A project the size and scope of the China State Shipbuilding Pavilion typically has a life cycle of about 18 months, but we had just seven months to complete our work from beginning to end," said Electrosonic project manager Marcel Videla. "Adding to the challenge was the fact that this is one of the few pavilions that will remain after the Expo, so much effort went into ensuring that installed elements were easily expandable in the future."

University of Alabama Opens New Exhibit and Retail Experience

Taft Design + Associates recently completed the new “Lost Realm of the Black Warrior” exhibit at Moundville Archaeological Park Museum in Moundville, Alabama for the University of Alabama. Using the designs that Taft Design had created in 2001, the museum director Bill Bomar presented these concepts to fund raise the project’s $5 million budget to realize his vision.

“We were given the opportunity to really apply our strong ‘show and theatrical’ design skills to bring this project to fruition,” said Geoff Woodward, principal of Taft Design. “From the early architectural concepts, exhibit styling, and retail extension of the experience, Taft Design incorporated not only the graphic design and logo development, but also integrated the patterns and designs from the authentic pottery displayed in the exhibit to enrich the theme and story of the exhibit experience.”

TD+A designed the entry exhibit to the museum as a full immersion for the guests to experience a recreation of an elite wedding ceremony. They life-casted local tribal members for the full scale static figures as well as utilized local/tribe artisans to reproduce the costumes, jewelry and special native props throughout the museum.

As the architectural concepts were developed, Taft Design expanded the existing facility to incorporate a new retail space, cafe, seating area and an exterior observation deck, which overlooks the actual mounds and plaza where the tribes lived more than 800 years ago. This was a natural extension of the museum experience, which allows guests to learn about the history and culture of these tribes and where they can purchase authentic native artisan products and research books about this rich archaeological site.

Age of Mammals Exhibit at NHM - 65 Million Years in the Making

Cinnabar Inc. helped realize the creative vision for the new, permanent 7,700 sq. foot Age of Mammals exhibit and rotating displays in the Haaga Family Rotunda Galleries at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County. Brought onto the creative team by Simon Adlam, NHM director of exhibit production, just 10 months out to collaborate in redesigning the exhibit systems, in addition to fabricating and producing them, Cinnabar implemented a "design/build" methodology to make the most of available time and resources, bringing the project in ahead of schedule. NHM's Adlam brought together and led the team that included Cinnabar, graphic design firm KBDA, NHM curators, NHM research scientists and museum staff.

"NHM's new exhibitions are an outstanding example of what this collaborative approach can achieve," says Cinnabar CEO Jonathan Katz. He credits the design/build approach and Adlam's leadership for the success of the project. "Design/build is the new warp speed project production model of the 21st century, and NHM's new exhibitions are an excellent example of what can be built. More info: www.cinnabar.com

TEA Roadshow 20th - 22nd September, 2010

The TEA Roadshow is on its' way!

To be launched at our "End of Season" Mixer at Beaulieu Motor Museum on the 16th of September, our Roadshow visits:

20/9/10 Alcorn McBride, Serris, France

21/9/10 Bose, Tongeren, Belgium

22/9/10 Flying Saucer, Berlin, Germany

This is an opportunity for the hosts & local members to invite non members, from all sectors of the industry, to be introduced to the TEA and its' resource base.

Invite your colleagues to this landmark event & share in an early evening of light refreshments and chat. We are creating individual flyers for each of the three events, so if you would like to receive a master for distribution to your industry colleagues, let us know which event, at Euroevents@TEAConnect.org & we'll send one out to you.

Call for Volunteers to join the Europe & Middle East Division Board of the TEA

Time is something each and every one of us finds precious.

Time for work.

Time for family and friends.

And now I am asking for volunteers to give up some of their time, to join the Board of TEA E&ME Division. Three board members are standing down in November. Michel and Kevin have been on the board for the maximum period admissible, and John has decided to stand down due to other work commitments.

So, we need volunteers to join Alan, Andreas, David, Hester, Gerd & myself on the board.

You will need to be able to provide a couple of hours a week, whether it is e-mail, phone calls or simply thinking about TEA and the benefits it can offer to its' members. You will also be expected to attend the 4 board meetings per annum, although not everybody attends every one!

What do you get in return?

Personally, I think it increases your profile & that of your organisation, not only in the E&ME Division but throughout the TEA & the profession world-wide but that's not the reason you should volunteer. You should do it for the satisfaction of being part of the team that will rejuvenate the TEA, bringing new ideas to the table, expanding the member benefits & the increasing the value of the association itself.

If you are interested, or want more information, contact me at phil@pha-int.com

At some point before the end of September, you will have to submit your nomination form detailing what you feel you can give the TEA, as a board member. The nomination committee of Andreas, Kevin, Gerd and I will review these and then send them to Burbank for distribution and voting.

Isn't it about time you stepped forward?

Phil
